It's time to talk about heroin

Drug addiction continues to be a major concern for society and the concern grows with every passing year. Drug and alcohol addiction ruins the lives of those most closely affected, but society at large suffers from addiction's rippling effects.

Heroin's rippling effect is being felt in many communities and ours is not exempt!

In an effort to bring that effect to the front line, Pendleton County Champion's Coalition and Pendleton County Fiscal Court will be hosting a community forum to address heroin from 6:30 - 8 p.m. Thursday, July 18 in the auditorium of Pendleton County High School.

The public is encouraged to attend.

City Council constructing Animal Control Ordinance

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

The Falmouth City Council discussed the ongoing revision of Falmouth's Animal Control Ordinance. Mayor Mark Hart recommended that the council adopt the county's vicious dog ordinance replacing Falmouth's ban on Pit Bulls. The mayor explained that the switch would be more practical and less expensive in application.

Citizens Barry Ammerman and Shawn Hayslette addressed Mayor Hart and the council supporting the addition of urban chicken keeping to the newly reconstructed city animal control ordinance.

A motion was made that the new ordinance should forbid the keeping of chickens inside city limits, with the exception of student projects, such as 4-H or Boy Scouts. The motion was given a second and a roll call vote was taken: Ernie Richie - (Yes), Gary Askin - (Yes), Mary Ann Pittman - (No), Ron Stinson - (No), Jodie Chapman Ramey - (Yes) and Darryl Ammerman - (Yes).

was shown by, and for, all involved in this solemn task," Parker said.
Kentucky State Police, Bracken County Sheriff, Kentucky Fire Marshal, and arson investigators, and investigators from Scott County Fire Department are all involved in the fire investigation.
"We are looking at everything," said KSP spokesperson David Jones.

Until late in the day, police were unsure how many bodies to expect.

"There may have been seven or more people in the house at the time of the fire," said Jones, during a press conference at the Bracken County Courthouse. "After the initial search and the severity of the fire, we ruled out there being any more survivors." Progress was cautious because of the instability of what remained of the home.

"There is a basement under the structure and that, along with a large chimney looming over the site, makes the search for remains more difficult," Jones said. "We have to be concerned about the safety of the searchers. They are trying to bring in equipment to bring down the chimney."

The impact on the community would be obvious, Jones said.

"This is a small community where everyone knows everyone else. It is going to be hard on the family and the community," Jones said. "It will take a hard toll."

News Flash

Bridge tolls appear likely in Northern Kentucky

By Amanda Van Benschoten, The Kentucky Enquirer

In about two months, transportation officials are expected to issue a report recommending tolls to help pay for the $2.5 billion replacement of the Brent Spence Bridge, as the Enquirer reported last week.

If this news came as a surprise, you haven't been paying attention over the past few years, as the issue of tolling has been relentlessly debated in both public and political spheres.

Throughout that debate, all signs have pointed to tolls as the inevitable solution to the problem of how to pay for such a massive project -- building a new structure to carry one of the nation's busiest freight routes over the Ohio River and reconfiguring the interstate corridor leading up to it.

Many Northern Kentuckians, including our 16-member state legislative delegation, ardently object to tolling the new span. They say the south side of the Ohio River will bear a disproportionate share of the cost and the negative effects of tolling, especially Covington.

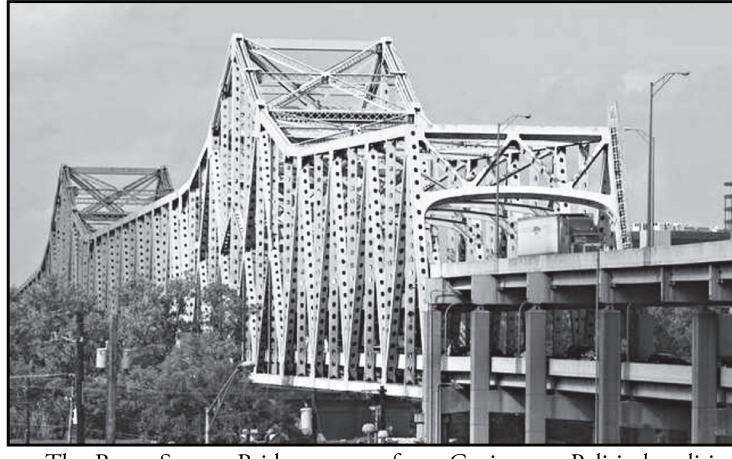

They're right. But that doesn't change the fact that tolls will be necessary to get this bridge built.

Toll opponents say that because the Brent Spence is a critical piece of the national transportation infrastructure, the federal government should pay to replace it.

They're also right. But that doesn't change the fact that the federal government will not be swooping in to save the day with a big, fat check.

In 2010, Congress imposed an earmark ban upon itself to try and combat pork barrel spending. A great idea in theory, but one of the unintended consequences is that Congress is now unable to earmark federal transportation dollars for specific projects, such as the Brent Spence replacement. Instead, each state now gets a pool of money to allocate as it sees fit.

And in Frankfort, convincing

The Brent Spence Bridge as seen from Covington. Political realities suggest that tolls will be needed to finance the replacement project. Photographer: Gary Landers/The Kentucky Enquirer.

138 lawmakers from all corners of Kentucky to spend a sizable chunk of that money on a Northern Kentucky project is a tough sell even in the best of circumstances.

Then take into account the fact that the legislature imposed tolls for Louisville's $2.6 billion Ohio River Bridges Project over the objections of residents and politicians there.

That decision sealed the deal for the Brent Spence. There is almost no chance the legislature will spend another dime on replacing the bridge if tolls aren't part of the financing plan.

It's a nasty pill to swallow, especially for Northern Kentuckians. We account for 65 percent of the traffic on the bridge during the morning rush hour and will pay a larger share of the tolls than our friends to the north.

But it's the reality of the situation.

Some toll opponents have suggested waiting to replace the bridge until a better funding solution can be found. But delaying the project isn't a viable solution, either. Replacing the Brent Spence Bridge isn't a "want-to," it's a "need-to."

The span will turn 50 years old this fall, but it's been labeled functionally obsolete for more than two decades because its lanes are too narrow, there are no emergency shoulders, and visibility is poor on the northbound lower deck.

It's also a safety hazard; in the past decade, three men who had the bad luck to become stranded on the bridge or stopped to help a stranded driver were struck and killed by other vehicles because there are no emergency lanes.

The Brent Spence carries a whopping 4 percent of the nation's gross domestic product each year, or more than $400 billion in commerce. It's a vital link in the Interstate 75 freight corridor and a critical piece of the region's economy.

But congestion on the bridge is a serious problem. It was designed to carry 80,000 vehicles daily but today carries 160,000. Gridlock is estimated to cost the region nearly $750 million annually in lost time and fuel, and cost each resident of the region $855 each year in lost wages and fuel.

The current project schedule calls for construction to begin in 2015. Delaying that by just two years could add $300 million to the $2.5 billion price tag.

Given the high costs -- financial and otherwise -- of doing nothing, a buck or two a day seems like a small price to pay to have a safe new bridge across the Ohio River.

Your input is requested on health assessment survey

The Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) is seeking the input of Kentucky residents for the state health improvement plan. Kentuckians can provide their thoughts and insights into improving the health of the Commonwealth by filling out the online survey at: <http://chfs.ky.gov/dph/CenterforPerformanceManagement.htm> by Aug. 1.

DPH recently drafted the state health assessment to carefully examine the health of the population and identify key problems and assets in Kentucky. The ultimate goal is to provide data to guide decision making for a State Health Improvement Plan.

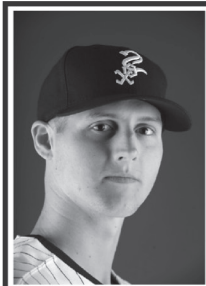

"The Department for Public Health is asking for your input to decide what priorities to focus on for the Kentucky State Health Improvement Plan," said DPH Commissioner Stephanie Mayfield, M.D. "Once priorities have been vetted with various stakeholders, goals and objectives will then be drafted and used along with other, previously determined goals set forth by various public health partners. We plan to capitalize on progress already achieved in this area and use additional input to broaden outreach and build a healthier Kentucky."

Currently, Kentucky ranks 50th in smoking, 40th in obesity, 50th in cancer deaths and very low in status for many other important health indicators. Overall, Kentucky currently ranks 44th among all states in major health status categories, according to the America's Health Rankings Profile for 2012.

"The main objective of the state health improvement plan is to address these negative health indicators by developing a roadmap to transform Kentucky from a state that consistently reports poor health status to one that supports dynamic initiatives to help Kentuckian's lead healthier lives," said Dr. Mayfield. "Now is the time to make a move in the right direction. Too many Kentuckians are dying from issues that can be prevented. This will take public health, community partners, and the general public to weigh in on the best strategies to move in that direction."

Public input will help DPH and community partners determine what is best for Kentucky. Individuals without computer access can obtain a paper survey by contacting 502-564-3970.

History of Pendleton County by Emma McClanahan Thompson

This history of Pendleton County was written by Emma McClanahan Thompson in 1934 and was printed in several editions of The Falmouth Outlook beginning July 5, 1988. Ms. McClanahan graduated from Falmouth High School in 1927. She received her B.A. and masters degree from the University of Kentucky. She was a teacher at Bunker Hill and Gardnersville School in Pendleton County and Pippa Passes, Ky.

According to Mrs. Thompson's sister, Allie McClanahan, the Bunker Hill School was a one-room school. After riding a Greyhound bus to school, Mrs. Thompson built a fire in the stove and pumped water from the well before lessons began.

"The Tomahawk," the student newspaper from San Andreas, describes Mrs. Thompson this way, "She gives the appearance of a mean bear, at the first glance, but by the time you are half way through your Frosh year in her English class, you can't help but love her. She is the stern, yet lovable type of teacher, who has a lot on the ball. She knows her stuff, too. She will remain in the hearts of all who have had her as a teacher for many, many years. To many she is like a "school mom," and she very affectionately calls her students "her little brats!"

She married Frank Thompson of Texas in 1943, then moved to Idria, California where she was an office manager and bookkeeper of a silver mining company. When that went out of business they moved to Altaville, California. There she worked in assayer's office for a time, then an assistant county clerk for Calaveras County.

Mrs. Thompson then taught English at Calaveras County High School, San Andreas, California for approximately 20 years. She retired in 1973. Mrs. Thompson lived in Calaveras for 30 years.

History of Pendleton County Population

Pendleton County, Kentucky, was formed by an act of the General Assembly in Kentucky in 1798 from Bracken and Campbell Counties, being the twenty eighth in order of formation; but was not organized until 1800. It was named after Edmund Pendleton, the distinguished orator, jurist and statesman of Virginia. It is situated in the northern part of the state with the northeastern angle touching the Ohio River. In 1820 one half of the original territory was cut off to form Grant County. At present the county is nearly square in shape and contains about three hundred square miles, or within a fraction of two hundred thousand acres of land. It is well watered and drained by the Licking and South Licking rivers, which, entering the county from the southwest and the south, come together at the county seat, Falmouth, near the northern boundary into the Ohio River. These two streams have numerous tributaries.

About 1776 the first permanent settlements were made in the district now included in Pendleton County. The settlers were from Virginia, Pennsylvania and neighboring colonial divisions of the east. Old settlers on the South Fork of the Licking River and on Grassy Creek claim the right of priority of location. It is generally understood that about 1776 many of the settlers who remained in the county, became actual residents of either the South Licking or Grassy Creek sections.

Many of these early settlers had land grants, presented them in recognition of their services during the Revolutionary War. Descendants of the pioneer stock can still be found in all sections of the county who have continued through the years the cultivation of the land their ancestors first claimed and settled.

There has been a gradual increase in populations until around 1900. The fertility of the soil and the central location of the county attracted immigrants from other states until the year 1860 there was a total population of 10,443 of which 466 were negroes. In 1870 the population had increased to 14,030 with 641 negroes. In 1880 the census showed the greatest number since the settlement of the county 16,702. The next decade shows a slight decrease, 16,346 with an even greater decrease in 1900, the population being only 14,947. From this time on the decrease has been marked: 1910-11,985; 1920-11,719; 1930-10,876. The total native population of whites of foreign or mixed parentage in 1930 was 497 of which 273 were Germans and with representatives from England, France, Canada, Scotland, Hungary, Austria, Italy, Russia, Wales, Switzerland, Northern Ireland and the Irish Free States. The population has decreased so rapidly that in 1930 there are only 443 more people than in 1860. For Pendleton County the percent of increase from 1920 to 1930 has been a negative 7.2.

There are several causes for this rapid decline in population: Notable among these are the decrease of the birth rate and the emigration of the young people to more industrialized centers, where rewards are higher and more easily obtained for their labor than on the farms. At one time the infertility of the soil was a factor toward the decrease in population but in recent years this has been overcome by better methods of farming.

This emigration has caused a decrease in the production of farm products. It has affected the industries in the towns in that the younger element with its vital interest in new methods and new ideas has been drained away, leaving the older and more settled people at the helm of affairs.

Monument and Famous Men

Very little of historical note ever happened in the county. Falmouth, the county seat, is situated on or near the ruins of an ancient fortification, evidently built by a prehistoric race, who occupied the country before the Indians. This fortification is yet visible, situated on an elevated and commanding ground nearly midway between the two streams of the Licking and the South Licking rivers. It commands the junction and some distance up both streams. There are other prehistoric ruins in the county especially in the Grassy Creek Section.

Daniel Boone at one time owned a track of land consisting of seven hundred acres on the north fork of the Licking. This is not generally known but is recorded in the Deed Book of the county.

Among the early things of most importance was the march of Col. Byrd and his hostile army of six hundred British and Savages in 1779. They ascended the Licking River to the junction of the Main and South Fork where Falmouth now stands. There they landed a cannon and concentrate his army before going on to capture Ruddle's and Martin's Stations in Bourbon County. Returning by the same route Byrd and his motley army took the water at Falmouth and, proceeding down the Licking to the Ohio; made their way to Canada. This route is indicated on Filson's map and is known as Byrd's War Road.

Another man of importance who entered the county around this time was General George Rogers Clark who in 1872 on his third encampment from Bryant's Station located his troops in the Main Forks of the Licking on a branch running into the South Fork known by the name of Burn's Branch. There were three men in the county who were with General Clark and located the spot for historical purposes.

There is an island in the Main Licking, known as Austin's Island, which the Indians, who came from Ohio and surrounding territory held as a rendezvous before marching on to enter into the Battle of Blue Licks. Not only was this island used as a rendezvous for this particular battle but was always a meeting place for any battle in which the Indians engaged.

Get ready for Cloverville

Summer's here, and before you know it, the Kentucky State Fair and Cloverville will be in full swing. This year, the state fair is from August 15-25.

Cloverville is an annual attraction of every Kentucky State Fair. Located in the West Hall of the Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville, Cloverville offers an opportunity for 4-H'ers to showcase their abilities and compete for statewide ribbons and awards. Regardless of whether they win at the state fair, the young people who have exhibits at Cloverville are already winners, as they won their county competition to advance to the state fair. Cloverville gives fellow Kentuckians good examples of 4-H projects and our young people's work ethic. Some of these projects took 4-H'ers weeks, months and sometimes an entire year to complete. Projects display skills in areas as diverse as science, the home and arts and crafts.

In addition to the projects, 4-H'ers will be on-hand showcasing their skills in activities such as mannequin modeling and on-site competitions. Mannequin modeling gives participants the chance to model an outfit they have designed and constructed. On-site competitions include Lego wars and 4-H's version of "Cupcake Wars."

For more information about Cloverville events or to register for a competition, contact the Pendleton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Beneficial snakes

Many people fear snakes, but despite the fright they can cause, the majority of snakes are beneficial. Of the 33 varieties of snakes in Kentucky, only four are venomous (Northern copperhead, Western cottonmouth [water moccasin], timber rattlesnake, and pygmy rattlesnake). Most snakes you encounter around your home are harmless. If you are scared of them, try to remember that they are useful—they keep the rodent population in check by eating mice, rats, chipmunks and even toads, insects and other pests.

Summer months increase the possibility for an encounter with a snake, as snakes leave dormancy in the spring to mate. And because people go outside more often in the warm months to enjoy leisure and sporting activities, surprise encounters can happen. When threatened, a snake may coil up and hiss, but generally, its reaction will be to get away from you.

Snakes like damp, dark, cool places where food (usually mice) is accessible. They also will be drawn to areas that provide shelter and shade from the summer sun. The best way to get rid of snakes is to modify the habitat that is attracting them. Some recommendations include:

- Stack firewood 12 inches above the ground on a pallet
- Remove lumber or junk piles where snakes could hide
- Trim bushes and shrubs that grow against a foundation
- Keep all lots, fields, and lawns mowed and well kept
- Remove debris and trash from pond and stream banks
- De-clutter basements and attics, especially where rodents can be found
- Keep feed for livestock in covered metal containers to discourage rodents
- Remove pet food after feeding
- Use covered metal cans for trash
- You can use glueboards to remove snakes. For longer snakes, you may need to nail several glueboards in succession to a piece of plywood. But remember that the best option for snake removal is to modify the environment so the snakes are not attracted to the area.

Give infants and toddlers a good start

Recent findings indicate that even infants and toddlers are now at risk for becoming obese. Current national figures for infants and toddlers show that one in 10 is overweight, and more than 20 percent of children between the ages 2 and 5 are already overweight or obese.

Early obesity can lead to adult overweight or obesity and the chronic diseases that stem from weight management issues. Reversing this alarming trend is critical for parents or care-givers to ensure health for children as they grow up. Recommendations include the following:

- Be a role model by eating and enjoying healthful foods
- Offer nutrient-dense foods
- Limit or avoid sugary drinks, including soda and juice
- Reduce fast food meals; choose healthy options instead
- Provide milk and water with meals and/or in between
- Eat home-cooked meals so that calories and ingredients are better controlled
- Serve healthful snacks such as fruits, raw vegetables and nuts
- Allow occasional treats
- Serve small portions; learn the serving size of different foods

- Follow a schedule for meals
- Active play, at any age, along with diet, is important to well-being and overall health. Even infants need time for free floor play with appropriate supervision to stimulate their movements, develop coordination and strengthen muscles. Every day, caregivers should encourage toddlers to be active so they develop good habits of playing and exercising that will carry over as they grow older. Children also must get enough sleep; lack of sleep is a risk factor for obesity. Caregivers and parents should limit screen time and instead encourage activity.

And caregivers should remember that diets are not the answer, particularly for children. Instead, help children establish healthy eating habits and an active lifestyle from the start.

Comer project to offer all-Kentucky milk to state

Agriculture Commissioner James Comer today officially unveiled "Udderly Kentucky" milk, a new Kentucky Proud brand launched today in 32 Walmart stores in central and south-central Kentucky. "Udderly Kentucky" milk is 100% sourced from Kentucky dairy farms and 100% processed in Kentucky. In addition, a 7-cent-per-gallon premium will be returned directly to every participating Kentucky dairy farmer.

"Udderly Kentucky" milk is trademarked by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture and processed by Prairie Farms Dairy in Somerset, Kentucky. This facility processes milk from 105 Kentucky dairy farmers in the region. Prairie Farms is offering "Udderly Kentucky" milk in whole, 2%, 1%, and skim varieties in gallon sizes.

"This initiative has the potential for more direct farm impact than any program in Kentucky Proud history," Comer said. "A lot of people don't know that milk that is processed in Kentucky may still be milk that is shipped in from surrounding states. I want to encourage all Kentuckians to seek out the 'Udderly Kentucky' label and buy a product that puts money directly in the hands of our own dairy farmers."

"When Commissioner Comer and his staff suggested this partnership with Walmart, we knew it was right for these farm families and for the Kentucky community that we serve," said Tino Soto, a market manager who has served as regional buyer for Walmart. "Our company has exactly the same mission as your Commissioner: Increase farm impact and net farm income on our shelves. 'Udderly Kentucky' is one more addition to our line of Kentucky Proud products that range from Purnell's breakfast sausage and Wind-Stone Farms jam to Weisenberger Mill flour mixes, central Kentucky produce, and much more."

"Prairie Farms is a processing facility owned by farmers, so this is a natural fit for us," said Mike Chandler of Prairie

Farms. "We work with more than 100 area dairy farmers, and I'm so excited we will directly impact them by offering Kentuckians a product that goes from the farm to the table while never leaving the borders of the Commonwealth."

Commissioner Comer said "Udderly Kentucky" milk was soft-launched two weeks ago in the initial 32 Walmart stores to assure that all shelves were set and the distribution pipeline was flowing efficiently. The test markets for "Udderly Kentucky" milk included Walmart stores in Barbourville, Bardonia, Berea, Campbellsville, Columbia, Corbin, Danville, Frankfort, Glasgow, Georgetown, Harrodsburg, Hardinsburg, Lawrenceburg, Lebanon, Leitchfield, Lexington, London, Manchester, Middlesboro, Monticello, Nicholasville, Richmond, Somerset, Stanford, Tompkinsville, Williamsburg, and Winchester. A list of locations where "Udderly Kentucky" milk is sold can be found at www.UdderlyKY.com.

Three participating Kentucky dairy farm families are featured in initial marketing materials. Tony Compton of Fairplay in Adair County; Dante Carpenter and his daughter, Elise, from Russell Springs in Russell County; and Patrick Patterson from Long Cedar Dairy in Nancy promote the product in advertising and store materials. More Kentucky farmers will be involved in subsequent marketing efforts.

Funds for marketing were made available through the Kentucky Proud program, which receives its funding from the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board. The Board works to diversify Kentucky's farm economy and provide more opportunities for growth. The number of dairy producers in Kentucky has declined by almost 50 percent since 2000.

For more information on "Udderly Kentucky," participating farmers, and benefits of the program, visit www.UdderlyKY.com.

The Amish Cook's homemade corn chip salad recipe

The Amish Cook

By: Lovina Eicher

On July 3, 2013 is half over already. We have been having lots of rain. Last week we had a total of eight inches. Some report more, some less.

All is still quiet around the house this morning so I decided to get up earlier than the rest to write this column. With this being vacation week for my husband Joe and daughter Elizabeth we have been sleeping in longer. Bedtime is also later with not having to set an alarm. Such nice family time together and memories made. Sunday evening we took supper to Jacob and Emma's house. We then went to see how their daughter Elizabeth is faring since her surgery on Thursday. She is doing as well as can be expected. The men and boys played croquet while the rest of us visited. The eight player croquet set was a Father's Day gift to Joe and has been played many times since.

Corn de-tasseling should be starting any day. Daughters Susan and Verena went to help rogue the corn on Saturday. If I understand correctly "to rogue" the corn is to take out the tall unwanted cornstalks out of the cornfields. This is done before the corn is de-tasseled. The fields were over a mile long and each person takes 12 rows at a time. After all this rain it made for some tough walking. Their shoes were caked with mud when they came home.

On Friday we enjoyed a fish fry at Timothy's house. Timothy and Elizabeth cooked supper outdoors. Was very enjoyable to relax and not have to cook.

Elizabeth and Loretta went to clean Timothy's house on Saturday. I told Elizabeth to bring his laundry here to wash on Monday. She brought his curtains, extra bedding, etc to wash as well. Using our spinner, our laundry and his dried really fast on the lines. With Timothy working long hours it's hard for him to keep up with the housework all the time.

Last week we made quite a few batches of strawberry freezer jam. My rhubarbs are looking very nice since the rains so want to makes one more batch of juice

We are enjoying red potatoes, peas, green peppers and hot peppers from the garden. Have small zucchini almost ready to pick. Red beets are ready to use but am leaving them to get bigger to pack pickled beets. Tomato plants are loaded with tomatoes and corn is looking nice again. Our sweet onions are getting very big and doing extra well. The cooking onions I store over the winter are doing great as well. Meal planning is so much easier with the garden goodies. Joe planted another patch of sweet corn yesterday for later use.

Son Kevin, 7, does not get along with our rooster. He usually gathers the eggs and has had a few surprises from behind from that rooster. We also have a hen with a bad attitude. Daughter Susan came out to the barn and heard this hen really squawking. She could not keep from laughing when she seen Kevin and the hen face to face and the hen's feathers were all raised. Kevin had an egg aimed to throw at the hen for his protection.

Kevin keeps us all laughing. He wanted to help me mix Loretta's birthday cake but after cracking the first egg too hard it fell on the counter-top. He did manage to get the others in the bowl. We made the cake while Loretta was outside sitting on the swing. We hid it until supper time so Loretta could be surprised. God's blessings.

Try this salad with your garden lettuce.

She went on to pass the Kentucky Paraeducator Assessment, which enabled her to apply for a job at the adult education center where she earned her GED. RELIGION

BLANKET CREEK

It was a great Sunday at church! Joanna Crouch sang "There'll be a Light for Me at the River." We had a children's message by Vickie Carr. Bro. Joe's text was "Grace is a Standing" taken from Hebrews 4:16. Grace is the unmerited favor of God. Because of grace we are able to go to the throne of grace and receive salvation. God's grace is schooling - the grace of the Lord will teach us. God's grace is "supplying" God's grace will supply us. God's grace is "sovereign." God's grace is "saving" grace - salvation is a gift from God. Grace comes by none other than God. God's grace is "sustaining." God's grace will "surpass" everything we can imagine. God's grace is "sufficient." It is not hard to give your life to Christ; the hard part is overcoming your pride.

We added Joe Blackaby, Mary Courtney and Dr. McElfresh to our prayer concerns.

We also added the family of Fern Fisher.

CEMETERY CHAPEL

Cemetery Chapel Christian Church will be having VBS from 6-8 p.m. on July 26 and 27. This year's theme is "God's Super Hero Squad." There will be a lesson, games, crafts and refreshments. If you or your child needs transportation, call the church at 747-5707 and leave a message. Hope to see you there!

If you are looking for a church home we would love to have you as part of our church family. Sunday school begins at 9 a.m. and church service is at 10 a.m.

FALMOUTH BAPTIST

Blessings from the Falmouth Baptist Church! If you are looking for a church, we hope you'll stop by and worship with us.

Bro. Cohen's message was taken from I Samuel 17 and was titled "Why David Fought Goliath." Firstly, David believed there was a cause. We, like David, need to stand up for what is right and against what is wrong. Secondly, David realized there was a call.

We need to be like David and be faithful when God calls. David was consecrated (set apart) and that's another reason why he took on Goliath. Finally, David knew there was a cure/solution. Most onlookers saw Goliath as only a giant. David, however, saw a mortal man defying almighty God. He knew he would not be alone when he faced Goliath; God would fight with him. What giants do you face? Remember that God is available to help you fight your giants!

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

Bro. Rick's message was from Matthew 5:1-12. "The Beatitudes."

"Seeing the multitudes, Jesus went up into a mountain: when He was set, his disciples came unto Him: He opened His mouth and taught them, saying, blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted. Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness sake: for they shall be filled. Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." KJV

My question I ask you, do you think you are blessed? Jesus will give you love and salvation. We need to tune ourselves into Jesus. Our country is going through many changes that are not to God's will. We need to put our trust in God. He will hold our hand when we are going through difficult times. Jesus has a pure heart. We need to read our Bibles, so we will know the word. We need to tune ourselves into Jesus. We need to have compassion for others.

Pray always for the lost, sick and those in nursing homes or home bound.

Youth meet at 6 p.m., every Thursday.

Have a great week and love the Lord with all your heart!

FALMOUTH METHODIST

It's vacation season, that time that many look forward to all year with great anticipation. The rest, relaxation and enjoyment that you desperately need will soon be a reality. Prior to the time off you plan what you're going to do; knock yourself out trying to get all your work done for the week (or more) that you'll be gone and tie-up any loose ends at home before you leave. When the time finally comes to "enjoy" that break, it seems to go by way too fast. Often, we come home more tired than when we left.

Many of us lead such busy, crowded lives, and we often have the tendency to go at the same pace, trying to fit everything in, while on vacation. Maybe what we really need is to just stop and catch our breath for a moment. Enjoy God's gift of true rest.

FIRST BAPTIST

Adam Crozier blessed us with special music the first Sunday in July. Bro. Harry's message, "Freedom in Christ," was taken from Galatians. Our one true freedom comes from the blood of Jesus Christ. We need to quit being slaves of things that have us trapped, such as alcohol, drugs, lust, love of money, material things, etc. Trust in the Lord and He will set you free. It takes a really big commitment to follow Christ and stay strong in your faith. With the Lord on your side, you can do anything.

With so much sickness, sadness and sorrow in our little town, we must pray earnestly for the lost, those facing illness, those who have lost loved ones, our community, our country and the military.

"After each storm of life; there comes a rainbow of hope!"

HARVEST

Bro. Donnie's message was titled, "Wise Up About Influence" based on scripture text of Proverbs 29:18. Where there is ignorance of God, crime and sin runs wild. Do we as Christians compromise to the ways of the world? We must know God's ways and keep his rules.

Our youth are currently in South Carolina on their mission trip. We pray for a good and safe time and God's blessings on them as they do outreach ministry there. Men's meeting/breakfast will be at 8 a.m., Saturday, July 20. We will have a church wide pool party at 7 p.m., Sunday, August 4, at Kincaid Lake State Park.

Prayer concerns: Snip Owens, Bro. Conrad Hefner, Richard Price, Jay Perkins, Linda Daugherty, Louise Mason, Louise Price, Bryce Crowley and the families of Steve Hardin and Fern Fisher.

Come worship with us at 111 E. Shelby Street.

LIFECHURCH 146

The reference for our message today came from Mark 2:15-22. Being different. Is it a bad thing? Absolutely not, if it is for the right reasons. Don't apologize for being different than the crowd, Jesus didn't. When religious leaders criticized His disciples, Jesus told them that although their practices were different from what the leaders were use too, that didn't mean they were wrong. If we stay stuck in the "old ways" then how will we ever be "anointed by the new wine." Let us take the new that God gives us and look forward to the day we get to wear the new garment of Christ and no longer try to patch the old one. Message by Pastor Wes Cain. Join us next week at 11 a.m.

MT. CARMEL

For Independence Day, the message Bro. Rick shared was "God Save America." It was a message that brought to light everything from our Founding Fathers to the way America is today. It's an eye opener. Everything was back by the Bible. If you was unable to attend the sermon visit our website.

We have a new schedule for our prayer warriors to sign up.

We also have tracts titled, "God's Bridge to Eternal Life." They are located at the back of the sanctuary.

- Business Meeting, 7 p.m., July 10.
- Choir practice, 5:30 p.m., July 14.
- Ice Cream Social (after the evening service), July 21

"This is the promise which He Himself made to us: eternal life."

~ 1 John 2:25

- Choir practice, 5:30 p.m., July 28.
- School Flyer Handout Visitation, July 31.

We invite you to visit our website www.themcbc.com

MT. GILEAD

Time is drawing near for the big gathering and dinner on the grounds on August 18. Make your plans now.

But I don't want to get the horse before the cart. Service will be held at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, July 21.

An old time service with special music and wonderful fellowship. Come early to enjoy the view and the grounds. Get the feeling of worshipers who came to Mt. Gilead 100 years ago.

God bless you and keep you from harm.

MT. MORIAH

Sunday, July 7, we finally had a day without rain! Regardless of the weather we must remember that each day is a day the Lord has made and we will be glad and rejoice in it.

Our remodeling project has once again been put "on hold" due to circumstances beyond our control. We are still hoping to begin the project soon.

Mt. Moriah came through with lots of winners in their different divisions at the fair. We congratulate all of them for the work they did to achieve these accomplishments.

We are sorry to hear that "Little Ellie" has had a very bad week. Her mother also suffered a bad fall and had serious injuries. We pray for their recoveries. We also pray for all of those on our sick list.

We offer sympathy to the family of Troy Prince. His death was very sudden. Troy is the son of Judy Brownfield Prince and the late Ronny Prince, formerly of the Mt. Moriah Church.

This is what the Lord Almighty says. "Give careful thought to your ways. Go up to the mountain and bring down timbers and build the house, so that I may take pleasure in it and be honored," says the Lord. Hagai 1:7-8.

Have a blessed week.

NEW ZION

Come join us for worship and Christian fellowship. Sunday School begins at 10 a.m., morning worship is at 11 a.m. and evening worship starts at 6:30 p.m. Bible study is at 7 p.m. on Thursdays.

Upcoming opportunities: There will be an Ice Cream Social at 7 p.m. July 20 and the Disaster Relief Team will have a meeting and lunch at 12:30 p.m. on July 21.

Matthew 4:4 "But he answered and said, it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Please remember in prayer Bea Elrod, Larry Hamilton, Mary and Brian Davis, Jim Turner, Molly Mullins, Connie Egan, Kevin McClanahan, the Fugate Family, our country and its leaders.

OAKLAND CHRISTIAN

Take another step or two to plant a seed of faith in someone. We must get connected with people, build a relationship. God provides the increase.

Oakland is sponsoring a free swimming party for youth, July 20, 7-10 p.m. at the Kincaid Lake State Park.

Our Revival is July 21-24 with Kenny Speakes as evangelist. Special music will be each evening at 6:30 p.m.

Congratulations to Easton Browning for winning first place in his category at the Pendleton Co. Youth Fair.

Prayer concerns include Eudell Hall, Florine Hiles, Donna King, Gary Wallace, Jim McCann, Barbara Florence, Tom Askin, Larry Wright, Pam Gallagher, Beverly Salerno, Melanie Gates, Kenneth Showalter, Snip Owens, Bro. Conrad Hefner, Brittany and Joey Francis, Isabella Saylor, Tookie Lea Mee, Evelyn Browning, Randy Bishop, Lisa Powell, Rena Carol Aulick Lynn, our shut-ins, our armed forces, and our leaders.

PLEASANT RIDGE

Happy Birthday Olga Sullivan.

During the month of July we will participate in a "tennis shoe" drive for the Crittenden Association. Shoes will be sent to missionaries in Lynch, Ky.

Way to go PRB for taking 1st place in the Falmouth Parade for walkers and bikers.

A concert with the Patriot Quartet has been scheduled for 5 p.m., Saturday, October 26.

Words of life and beauty, teach me faith and duty.

Bro. Rick's message was from I Corinthians 3:10-15. Building of a eternal life. Awards are based on quality and your attitude. God has taught me how to be an expert builder. But he who builds on the foundation must be careful. Our real foundation that we already have is Jesus. All of us together are the house of God, and the spirit of God lives among you in His house. God's home is holy and clean and you are that home.

Our Sunday evening Bible Study is in Genesis.

You can still make VBS this week! Starting at 6:30-8:30. Ages three years through seventh grade.

Colossal Coaster World....Facing Fear, Trusting God. Dare to....Change, Speak Up, Believe, Stand Strong and Trust!

SOUTHSIDE

July 7, we opened with the hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." Brother Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "The Power of Persistent Prayer," from Luke 18:1-8. Brother Clay talked about how Jesus told his disciples to always pray and not give up. Today, we should always pray and not give up. During the hymn of invitation, three came forward to move their membership to the Southside Church of Christ. The memory verse for the week is from II Corinthians 5:7, "We live by faith, not by sight."

Please be in prayer for all in one way or another.

Come and worship with us this Sunday: 9 a.m. Sunday school and 10 a.m. worship service.

TRINITY

Trinity celebrated through music for a patriotic service.

The puppets shared about the ghost in the church. Tilly was scared about a ghost being in the church, but Sakie explained that it was the Holy Ghost that God sent to us.

All were blessed to see our pastor and to see how well he is healing.

Bro. Greg Nemo preached from Philipians 1:12-27, "How do we handle obstacles?" Paul took a bad situation and used it for the glory of God. He handled it and continued to preach no matter what. Christians are too quick to get their feathers ruffled/their feelings hurt. We need to put on the full armor of God, get busy witnessing and inviting others to church. Set the spiritual fires aglow. Has the Gospel lost its power? Is God non-important? Why are church attendances down across America? Why aren't young men stepping up to preach? Where is the evangelism in our church and community? Church it's time to get busy and stop being lazy. Obstacles are just little excuses that the devil plants.

TURNER RIDGE

The Lord's Supper speaks of unity. "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." John 17:21.

We observed the Lord's Supper Sunday morning and reflected on the unity that we have with Christ. Sunday evening was also a special time of learning and sharing. Discipleship training starts at 6:30 p.m. each Sunday evening, come and join us at Turner Ridge for a time of exploring God's word and realizing how to apply it to our daily life. Worship service on Sunday evening begins at 7:15 p.m. know that Jesus calls us to minister to people and to share the good news of His love. We will be better prepared to minister to others if we are disciplined ourselves.

Pray for one another and the circumstances of the world. Hope to see you Sunday!

Knoxville VBS

The Knoxville Christian Church will be having Vacation Bible School nightly from 6 to 8:30 p.m. beginning on July 24 and ending on July 26.

The Faithful Church

Guest-written by the Rev. Anne Vouga (MDiv '08). Anne is rector at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Louisville.

Sometimes it seems as if all that we clergy want to write and talk about is how to get hold of those precious "nones," the growing number of people who might still believe in God, yet do not consider themselves members of any religious institution. I have joined in the hand-wringing like everyone else, but a distinct sense of déjà-vu usually calls me up short.

Way back in 1982, I raised my nose from my theology books and peered out at a foreign religious world that seemed to be collapsing in front of my eyes. I had come to France, full of youthful enthusiasm, to study, and then to serve, the descendants of the courageous Huguenots who had held firm in their faith through centuries of persecution. The Reformed Protestants were still widely recognized and admired in their secular country for their strong moral stance, for their work for justice and peace, for their care of the poor and the outcast... but strangely, their churches seemed to be dying, and icy gusts of hopelessness blew through the chinks in the church windows and swirled constantly around their heads during worship.

I can still picture those big

French Reformed Church buildings, made of stones as stubborn and sturdy as their Huguenot builders, yet now slumped on their foundations and looking inward with vacant eyes. I can picture the empty balconies that framed the proud central pulpit looking down on a dozen or so elderly men and women who were huddled for warmth around a gas stove in the center aisle. The pastor didn't bother to climb into the pulpit anymore; its tall canopy and high steps were too grand for the small number of worshipers huddled together in their winter coats and practical shoes. Birds made their nests in the balconies, and the paint on the walls was buckling and ripping open the plaster like old wrapping paper. The organ no longer worked, and so the elderly congregation sang the old Goudimel psalms unaccompanied-sad, like an old record that was playing on slow speed. The pastor stood with a smile pasted on his face in the midst of his flock, bravely proclaiming resurrection. At home, though, he spent his time wondering if it would help attendance if they moved the services to Fridays, before the weekends when busy French families found other occupations. And the pastor's wife spent her time wondering if the government allocations for a fifth child would buy them a new stove for the manse's drafty kitchen.

"How do these French pastors do it?" I wondered, remembering the full parking lots of program-sized American parishes back home. "Social justice and outreach work are nothing without faith and prayer and worship," I opined. "Where did the French Reformed Church go wrong, to be dying like this? They must be doing something wrong." I muttered, more and more desperately. Instinctively, in an attempt at self-preservation, I turned away from this dismal and disintegrating world, unwilling to stay on board a sinking ship when life and hope and love beckoned in the sunshine outside the church walls.
